Student’s Guide to the DRPS

What is DRPS?

DRPS stands for Degree Regulations and Programmes of Study.

The DRPS is a complete online listing of the Degree Programmes offered by the University of Edinburgh and all of the Courses of study available within these Programmes. It provides a description of the content of each Degree Programme and Course, their requirements, and information on the regulations which govern the University's academic procedures.

What is DRPS for?

All taught Degree Programmes at the University of Edinburgh, both Undergraduate (e.g. MA, BSc) and Postgraduate (e.g. MLitt, MSc), are made up of groups of Courses. Each programme requires that students complete a set amount work, of an appropriate academic standard, each year in order to progress. To help the University and its students manage these requirements, each Course is assigned a number of Credits appropriate to its academic level.

Each year, you will be asked to choose a set number of Credits' worth of courses from your Programme. Some of these Courses will be compulsory and others you can choose for yourself. DRPS describes the requirements of each Programme, its component Courses, and its contents; you can use it to plan your studies based on the Courses that most interest you, their Credit value, and any pre-requisites that will affect your Course selection at each Level of your Programme.

Not all Programmes offer Course Options in their first or second years, but the content of their compulsory Courses is listed in DRPS for your information.

How do I choose my Courses?

To plan and choose your courses, you can use Path: https://path.is.ed.ac.uk/

Path is a visual course selection and programme building tool originally developed by students within the School of Mathematics and now available across other Schools. It uses information from the DRPS to help students consider their degree pathway, review Course options, understand pre-requisites and co-requisites, and generate a timetable. Student feedback about individual courses is available to view. Path updates its core course and programme information nightly. Changes made in EUCLID (and thus on DRPS) will filter through automatically to Path.

Please note that your choices will only be official once they have been approved by your School, following discussion with your Personal Tutor. Your School will give you information on this process.

The FAQ for Path is viewable here: https://path.is.ed.ac.uk/about/faq
